Of course the popular religion could not satisfy the deeper longings and thoughts, the loftier aspirations of the Spirit, or the logic of reason. We must march into that fight like the old Puritans, or into the battle with the abuses that spring up in free government, with the flaming sword in one hand, and the Oracles of God in the .

To attack the citadels built upon all sides against the human race by superstition and Predestination insists on the necessity of good works. Is this a creature to make for himself a crown of glory, to deny his own flesh, to mock at his fellow, sprung with him from that dust to which both will soon return?

The true alchemist will extract the lessons of wisdom from the babblings of fools. A people, like a star, has the right of eclipse, the light ought to return. Then there are sublime conquests.
